THE total number of voters on the lists prepared for the plebiscite in Saskatchewan district was 2,877. The local electoral district of Edmonton cast 1,200 votes at the recent election, nearly half the total number of voters in the district of Saskatchewan. No doubt the number who did not turn out would bring the count up to a full half of the electorate of that district. This brings out prominently the material progress of Northern Alberta as compared with other districts of the Territories. The railway was built into Saskatchewan a year before it was into Northern Alberta. This end of the country is worth watching. No lack of progress to complain of here.

HOSPITAL AID.

A committee meeting of the hospital aid society will be held at the residence of Mrs. Braithwaite at 3:30 on Tuesday afternoon next, at which all members are requested to be present, and also all others who assisted by selling tickets.

OPERATIC AND DRAMATIC SOCIETY.

At a meeting held in J. L. Johnson's hardware store last week a dramatic and operatic society was formed. The following officers were elected: president, J. L. Johnson; vice-president, P. L. McNamara; secretary-treasurer, W. L. Foote; conductor, A. G. Randall; executive committee, T. W. Lines, Dr. Goodwin, C. B. Beale, R. McIntyre, J. G. Fairbanks; orchestra committee, A. G. Randall and P. L. McNamara. Admission for gentlemen, $1.00; ladies, 50c. The society will produce the "Pirates of Penzance" about Feb. 1st.

CARD OF THANKS.

The sisters of the Edmonton general hospital offer their grateful thanks to the following donors who have been generously assisting them during the three last months. The ladies aid society, the young ladies' branch, Capt. Boyd, from Winnipeg; Messrs. W. K. Camell, J. C. Gaudet, W. M. McKay and M. D. McKay, officers of H. B. Co., McKenzie district; Messrs. Larue, Gariepy, Lauder, Leclerc, Miss Voyer. The Imperial bank for a nice bedroom furniture set and bedding, through the kind intervention of Mrs. Kirkpatrick. Ninety-seven patients were admitted, of which 50 were Catholics and 47 Protestants. Attending physicians, Drs. Braithwaite and Harrison.

WINTER.

The weather turned cold and stormy on Friday night, and ice began to run in the river so thickly that the mail could not be brought across. During the night the ice formed clear across at the bridge. This left a large space of open water from a short distance above the bridge piers nearly to Ross point. By breaking through the shore ice for a long distance on each side it was possible to get a boat across. The delay was so great, however, that the mail did not reach the station until the train had gone. Several intending passengers were in the same fix. The incoming mail was also brought across in the morning. There was some crossing by passengers during the day by small boat, but of course all freight traffic was suspended. Saturday was stormy, but with scarcely enough snow for sleighing.

CHARITY BALL.

The ball in aid of the Edmonton general hospital under the auspices of the ladies hospital aid society was held in Robertson Hall on Friday evening. Although the night was stormy and the crossing of the river so difficult as to prevent many crossings from that side, there was a good attendance, being all that the hall could accommodate. Music was furnished on the piano, whistle, violin and cornet by Messrs. W. Clark, J. Flynn and E. Beaver. The music was frequently encored. Supper, provided and served by the ladies of the hospital aid, was enjoyed in the room below the hall, and was excellent in every particular. There were many very pleasing costumes—but the BULLETIN's fashion editor is on leave. In all respects the ball was a success, reflecting great credit on the management, and was thoroughly enjoyed. Dancing was kept up until an early hour on Saturday morning.

MARKETS.

Business has been slack owing to the difficulty of crossing the river. Now that crossing is assured grain may be expected to move more freely. Still, however, until prices improve there will be no rush like that of last year.
Oats offer the best inducement to market at present prices, at 19c to 22c for feed on this side up to 25c for milling on the south side.
Wheat 47c to 48c for the best.
Butter plentiful at 20c. Good rolls are becoming scarce.
Eggs. Stores offer 25c but can't get them at that price. Small lots by farmers to private parties at 30c.
Hay plentiful at $5 a ton.
During the recent cold snap coal has been scarcer than for years. The price is stiffy $2.00.

GARIEPY & CHENIER'S NEW STORE.
Messrs. Gariepy & Chenier are now occupying their new brick building. Their old store adjoins and is connected with the new one. In the new building will be handled dry goods and groceries and in the old one crockery, provisions and bulky articles generally. The new store has a floor space of 25x75 and the old building 24x65. The new building is three stories high with basement the full size. The basement walls are of stone and the floor of concrete. It is used as a store room. In one corner is a brick compartment twelve feet square to be used exclusively for the storage of butter in summer. The ground floor is occupied by the store. The ceiling is 14 feet above the floor and is covered with ornamental metallic plates giving a very fine appearance. A business office with glass sides 12x14 occupies one of the rear corners. The front is of plate glass in modern style and the light is ample. The second floor is divided into five offices about 15 feet square, a wide hall runs the length of the building from which the offices open. They are also connected by doors so that they can be leased in suites. Access to this floor is by a front staircase, which is put in the old building. There is also a rear staircase. The height of the ceiling on this floor is 12 feet, and the ceiling itself is of dressed lumber. The upper story is divided into six rooms about 15x15, which will be rented as apartments. The height of this ceiling is 11 feet. The telephone exchange will occupy the front room on this floor. The walls of the building are of brick with massed roof, the general effect is very pleasing. The inside woodwork is entirely in British Columbia fir and cedar. The floors are deadened. Electric light fittings are inserted throughout. For the present the building will be heated by stoves, but as soon as water works are established hot water heating will be introduced. The building is an ornament to the town, a manifestation of the business success of the firm and a credit to the enterprise of Mr. Gariepy. The brick and stone work was by P. Anderson, and the woodwork was under the superintendence of N. Brissette.

BULLETIN CO. (LTD.)

EDMONTON BULLETIN, NOV. 21ST, 1909.

IN EXPLANATION.

The BULLETIN desires to be fair to everyone. It was with this desire that Mr. F. Fraser-Tims' letter appearing in another column was published. On reading the letter over in cold type it seems hardly fair that it should be published without comment. When a man is smarting from recent defeat he may be allowed to go further in his expressions than at other times. But at the same time misconception must be avoided as far as possible. Mr. Tims' complaint is that while he did not work Dominion party politics his opponents did. He does not accuse Mr. Shera, but Mr. Shera's supporters. He clears himself, but says nothing about what his supporters did. If it is a fact that friends of Mr. Shera canvassed liberals on party grounds, can Mr. Tims be sure that friends of his did not canvass conservatives on like grounds? Until he can be sure on that point he should not insinuate that the conduct of his opponents was different from that of his friends. It was not right for either party to canvass support on Dominion party lines. But if it was done, the BULLETIN makes bold to say that it does not lie with conservatives to make accusations on that score.

The fact that certain fee-paid—not salaried—officials under the Dominion government, and those employed by them took part in the election against him does not prove that their opposition was political. It would be much better if salaried officers of the Dominion did not mix up in even local elections, but where a citizen who depends on his own business for his living does government work for fees, it is a rather severe rule that would prevent him from exercising his political rights in Territorial elections. It is an undisputed fact that some men drawing their full salaries from the Dominion government supported Mr. Tims—as they had a perfect right to do. But if they had, others had the same right to support the opposing candidate.

As to the specific cases mentioned by Mr. Tims: If the BULLETIN is not mistaken, the Alex. Hamelin, to whom Dr. Aylen is said to have appealed as a liberal, worked and voted for the conservative candidate at the last general election, as well as at the two preceding ones. Mr. Montgomery has a business of his own, and does not depend upon the post office in any way; which as a matter of fact does not more than pay the cost of running. Mr. Gordon is employed by Mr. Montgomery and not by the government. Why should not these gentlemen take part in a local contest? Dr. Aylen has a large medical practice and only does the government work in connection with it, being the most conveniently situated medical man for that work. Mr. Shera, the successful candidate, appears in the Calgary Herald's list of candidates as a conservative. He would seem to be a very unsuitable person to work up a liberal agitation in favor of. As to the general allegations regarding the means used to defeat him, Mr. Tims will no doubt see in his calmer moments that he should have either specified the means and the men, or should not have used the expression.

ACROSS THE MOUNTAINS.

During the night we pass Sicamous junction, at which point a 50 mile branch runs south to Okanagan lake; Kamloops, the oldest and most important interior town in British Columbia in a grazing and ranching district; and Ashcroft, at which point the Cariboo wagon road to the north connects. This is an important point for Edmonton trade on account of the consumption of oats by freight and stage teams on the 280 miles of road to Cariboo. In 1897 the amount of freight shipped north from Ashcroft was 7,000,000 pounds. The Thompson river is followed down to its junction with the Fraser at Lytton, the Fraser is crossed to the west side, and when daylight comes we are nearing North Bend, and an early breakfast.

Although the stations and dining halls at Field and Glacier were fine, they are excelled by this one at North Bend. There was a great change of climate when we passed the summit of the Rockies, but here we have reached another change. We have come within range of the warmth and moisture of the coast, and the most made of this in the cultivation and arrangement of the grounds. There is an abundance of almost tropical looking growth that is as striking to the prairie dweller as it is beautiful. At Field and Glacier the flowers were of the hardy kinds, and had the appearance of being rather in advance of their surroundings. Not so here. Plants and flowers were of the delicate varieties with a luxuriance of growth that showed they were at home. It was well into October, but the flower gardens and shrubbery showed no sign of its being other than the middle of summer. Even in the wild growth there was very little change. Some small shrubs with maple-like leaves had changed into almost maple colors. A profusion of these decorated the tables of the dining hall; which, by the way, was managed by a woman, and excellently managed too.

After leaving North Bend the railway follows close along the west side of the Fraser, which here is flowing due south, and breaking through the Cascade range of mountains, in a wild and broken canon. The river is a roaring torrent. Sometimes only a few feet across, so narrow is the cleft in the rocks between which it forces its way. Where the waterway is so narrow it may easily be imagined that when a freshet occurs there is a tremendous rise. The high water mark along the sides of the canon is in some places 50 feet above low water level. Here and there perched on overhanging rocks are racks of very light poles, which mark the spots at which the Indians catch the salmon on their way up stream. Sometimes a little cabin is near by,—or sometimes not near anything—with no noticeable means of access to it, or sometimes in a little place amongst the rocks where there is just room for the cabin to stand. The cabins belong to Indians or Chinamen, and the situation, and evident way of living, is not very attractive. Here and there is a little Catholic church, but there is no room for cultivation of any sort, and hardly room for a graveyard. Far below the river is roaring over and amongst the rocks, and far far above rise the mountains. The railway is sometimes cut bodily out of the perpendicular cliff, sometimes it goes through a tunnel, many and many a time through great rock cuts, but very seldom on level ground. The work of construction has been heavy, much more so than that through the Selkirk and Rockies; the road bed is substantial to the last degree and the grades are not steep. The train rushes at full speed around the curves and through the rock cuts, or along the roadway which overhangs the river, in a way to make the passenger hold his breath. This part of the road was built by the Canadian government, the most difficult on the whole line. The question is natural: "If the government could build the 213 miles from Port Moody to Savona's, including the most difficult and costly of the whole work, why could it not have built the less difficult and costly parts?" But people shake their heads and say that a government can never do such things as well as a company. That depends on the government and on the company. The scenery here is wilder than even through the Rockies.

Along the face of the cliff on the opposite side can be seen the remains of the old Cariboo wagon road, built in the early 50's. The part which has been paralleled by the railway has been allowed to fall into disuse. Beyond Ashcroft it is of course kept up in first class style. Great as the work of constructing the railway along the canon of the Fraser was, it is a question if more credit is not due the projectors and builders of the old Cariboo wagon road, for enterprise considering the then condition of the country, and for engineering ability considering the resources at the disposal of the road makers, than to the projectors and builders of the railway. To see the road as it hangs on the side of the opposite precipice, with nothing below but the torrent of the Fraser, and think of driving along it with a four-horse team, is enough to make one shiver. At one point is a beautiful, but a very spidery looking, suspension bridge, by which the road crossed from the east to the west side. From this bridge to Yale, the wagon road is practically followed by the railway. The work is not quite so heavy after the bridge is passed.

There are signs of bar mining similar to that on the Saskatchewan, being carried on at several points on the river—by Chinamen—and some old sluices intended to carry water for mining purposes are also seen. It was in this stretch of the river, and below Yale, that gold was first discovered in British Columbia in the early 50's, which led to the discovery of far richer Cariboo—riches which have never been surpassed; even by the Klondike.

Yale is at the head of navigation on the Fraser and the point from which the stages and freighters for Cariboo started in the days before the railway. During railway construction also it was an important point. But now it is chiefly interesting as a has been. The houses are of frame, small and old with moss grown roofs, and a general appearance of having seen better days; but withal an air of contentment and restfulness that seems characteristic of the pre-railway places of the coast. The conditions of life are easy, and people don't have to hustle; therefore they don't. Yale is at the outlet of the Fraser canon, and on the west side of the Cascade range. It is the beginning of the lower country or coast region of British Columbia, as distinguished from the upper country or interior. There is as much difference between the climate of the coast region and of the interior of British Columbia as between the interior and the adjoining Territories. The distinguishing feature of the climate of the interior is that it is dry, with great heat during part of the summer and moderate cold during a short winter. The great feature of the lower country is its moisture, and the lack of extreme temperatures in either winter or summer. In the valleys of the upper country the timber and general vegetable growth compares with that of Eastern Canada. But in the lower country the vegetable growth is extraordinary, and the timber enormous. The level ground occupied by Yale is possibly a quarter section in extent, between the river and the base of the mountains. Each house is surrounded by apple trees, and each tree was loaded with fruit. In the gardens, although it was October 6th, there were still roses in bloom, and no sign of fall was apparent anywhere in the valley except on some of the very delicate shrubbery in the woods. At the same time there was fresh snow on the tops of the surrounding mountains.

Last week quite a number of our friends were annoyed at having to poke their finger through the hole to find us. This week if they give us a call we will allay their disturbed feelings by showing the

VICTORIA ELECTION.

EDITOR BULLETIN.

Sir: Since my arrival here I have been asked so often as to whether the late contest between myself and Mr. Shera was run on party lines or not that I make following answer:

I am, as nearly everybody knows, a conservative, and so far as I am personally concerned did not in any way bring the question of politics into the contest, but on the other hand I found that either Mr. Shera or some of his agents were working the liberal ticket for all it was worth. For instance Dr. Aylen, president of the Fort Saskatchewan liberal association wrote a letter to Alex. Hamelin, Lac la Biche, asking for his support for Mr. Shera in terms somewhat like the following: "Mr. Shera is a strong liberal and a member of the Fort Saskatchewan liberal association and if elected promises to have a free ferry put on at Saddle Lake, etc."

Mr. Montgomery, the postmaster here, accompanied Mr. Shera, with an interpreter, around the country naturalizing foreigners, so as to secure their votes for Mr. Shera. He also acted as Mr. Shera's scrutineer on election day.

Mr. Gordon, the deputy postmaster here, was sent out to Manawan to act as Mr. Shera's agent there.

Dr. Aylen, surgeon for both the N. W. M. P. and Indian department, accompanied by Mr. Tomkins, farm instructor at Whiteside Lake, went to Lac la Biche, the former as agent, and the latter as scrutineer for Mr. Shera.

Mr. Campbell, the telegraph operator here, was ordered to take charge of the office at Victoria, as Mr. Gillis, one of the oldest employees had been promoted to the Fort Saskatchewan office. Through some strange work when Mr. Gillis arrived here, he found orders to return to Victoria, as he had been arranged to keep Mr. Campbell here, although the latter has only been about three years in the government employ and the former fifteen.

Both Mr. Haultain and Mr. Ross when holding the public meeting in your town and also prior to the closing of the last session distinctly asked that no party politics be introduced during the contest. I kept from it in every way, but what can be said, with the facts I state in this letter, from the other side.

There were other low and dastardly means used against me—that men calling themselves men should not have stooped to—and you Mr. Editor, whom I know to be a fair square and honorable man, will feel, with other honorable men, that the fight was not a straight one. As far as I know and, in justice to Mr. Shera, I might state, that I have heard of no meanness from him personally.

I beg to thank those who supported me at every polling division in the district, and I feel that the explanation in this letter is due to them, as well as other friends all over the Territories.

Yours faithfully,
F. FRASER TIMS.

VEOREVILLE.

Weather is good for this time of year. It freezes at nights, but the days are pleasant. Threshing is mostly all done in this neighborhood. The grain did not turn out as much per acre as last year, but it is of good quality. Everyone has good wheat.

We had the pleasure to welcome another new settler to our settlement—a Mr. D. McKenzie from Hay Lake. He has taken a place on Birch Creek, and will build a house as soon as possible. Until then he will live in part of Mr. Dennis' house. The Danaght brothers are erecting a new dwelling house. The widow Paulin, who left here two years ago, is expected back shortly. Nov. 9th.

WEDDING BELLS AT WETASKIWIN.

Our town hasn't a bell, but you know what we mean. A week ago yesterday a young man of goodly person stepped from the train, and last night took unto himself a most estimable young lady as wife. Miss Ethel Walker, third surviving daughter of J. H. Walker, our town druggist, was united in marriage with Mr. Allan Forrester, of Brooklyn, B. C. The ceremony was performed at the Anglican church, Rev. Mr. Andras officiating. Miss Dolly Walker was bridesmaid, while Mr. Bullock acted as best man. The bride looked very attractive, but it takes a woman to describe a dress, and the writer is not a woman. After the ceremony the many guests, Wetaskiwin's elite, repaired to the home of the bride's father, and had refreshments, music and a good time. The bride was the recipient of many valuable presents from her admiring friends. Mr. Forrester is in the employ of the British Columbia government, and is a large shareholder in some valuable mining claims. We much regret to lose Miss Walker, but our loss is the husband's gain, and we must practice the most difficult Christian duty and laugh with him who laughs. The young couple carry with them our best wishes for a happy and prosperous future. We'll be the next? Nov. 16.

MARKET BY-LAW.

Edmonton, Nov. 19, '98.

EDITOR BULLETIN.

Sir:—Mr. Picard in his letter in your last issue, calls attention to the omission of lot 33, one of the lots mentioned in Mr. Jellett's offer, from the $4,500 by-law; and suggests two reasons for the omission, either an error, or "some side issue that the public knows not of"; and further, as I gather, endeavors to lead the readers of his letter to conclude that whether the omission was by error or intention, Mr. Jellett, if the by-law passes, will be entitled to be paid $4,500 for the property not including lot 33, that is, $4,500 for property which he has agreed to sell for $3,225, that being the price of the lots actually mentioned in the by-law.

The omission of lot 33 was purely and simply a clerical error; whether it was made by me personally in drafting the by-law or by the typewriter operator in copying, I cannot say, not having preserved the draft. It is not possible that Mr. Picard himself believes that the omission was intentional. The minutes of the council meeting show the two motions, the result of the voting on which induced him to resign, to be followed immediately by the following: "On the motion carrying Mr. Picard placed his resignation in the hands of the council."

"That the solicitor prepare a by-law to raise the money necessary to purchase the market site as set out in Mr. Jellett's letter, for submission to the ratepayers, and a special meeting of the council be called for Wednesday, the 9th inst., at 4 p. m., to pass provisionally the said by-law." Mr. Picard remained in his seat till after this resolution was passed. He himself, quotes Mr. Jellett's offer.

That Mr. Jellett, if the by-law passes, would become entitled to the $4,500 for the property without lot 33, is absurd. The arrangement with him is a matter of contract—a contract which is a mere option, not binding on the town even if the by-law is assented to by the necessary majority of ratepayers. The by-law is no part of the contract with him, but merely a means of raising the money to carry out the contract, if, after the ratepayers assent, the council on further consideration finally pass the by-law. The clerical error in the by-law does not in any way affect its validity, or prejudice the interests of the town, and it has in reality misled nobody.

I wish just to add that I do not wish to be supposed as expressing any opinion as to the desirability or undesirability of the market site offered by Mr. Jellett.

FUNS.

The November council of the McMillan Fur & Wool Co., of Minneapolis, gives the following information regarding fur: Mink, muskrat, skunk, bear and beaver, are the only kinds of furs that are worth trapping in the month of November. Skunk are No. 1 or prime, the first of any kind, and if the weather is cold, mink will soon be prime, and muskrat will pass as winter, which are worth from 1c to 2c more than fall. Beaver and bear when caught in November, will generally grade No. 2, and when caught earlier, proportionately less. Other kinds of furs, besides those mentioned, will grade prime after winter sets in. Summer bear are not worth more than the express charges, but they can be shipped in with other goods. Bear, badger, lynx and wild cat are in poor demand, both in this country and Europe. Minnesota and Dakota fall muskrat run from 25% to 30% kites, but the proportion decreases in the later caught. But a small proportion of the marten grade dark.
